

Master's Comprehensive Examinations in the College of Human Sciences and Humanities

Visit with faculty advisor to determine whether a comprehensive examination is an appropriate capstone for you

Complete 6 additional hours, for a total of 30, prior to preparing for the Comprehensive Examination.

Complete the master's course option form and submit to your comprehensive examination committee chair

Enroll in comprehensive examination research hours

Complete comprehensive examination according to instructions provided by program faculty

Prepare for comprehensive examination according to directions provided by program faculty

CHARACTERISTICS OF COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION

Comprehensive Examinations provide opportunities for demonstrating expertise in aspects central to the student's work in the degree program.

Students first complete an additional 6 hours of course work for a total of 30 hours prior to registering for the Comprehensive Examination.

Students who have completed 30 hours of MA-level work may, with the approval of their advisor, complete a Comprehensive Examination.

Comprehensive Examinations are written and evaluated by a committee of program-level faculty led by a member of the graduate faculty. Types and number of questions vary by program.

Comprehensive examinations may be repeated one time, not earlier than the semester after the initial attempt